Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-12, drawn to an electrical component testing device, classified in class 324, subclass 754.
- II. Claims 13-22, drawn to a device for testing a plurality of semiconductor devices, classified in class 324, subclass 754.
- III. Claims 23-28, drawn to a method of manufacturing a device for testing a plurality of electrical components, classified in class 29, subclass 825.
- III. Claims 29-32, drawn to a method of testing a plurality of electrical components, classified in class 324, subclass 754.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because:

Inventions III in a first set and I and II in a second set are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the method of claim 23 of Invention III does not produce the apparatus of claim 1 of Invention I thus the obvious method of making the apparatus of claim 1 is something different.

Inventions I and II in a first set and IV in a second set are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the method of claim 29 of Invention IV requires the use of elements not present in the apparatus of claim 1 of Invention I.

Inventions II and I are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because all of the details of the subcombination are not required by the combination and at least claim 13 serves as an evidence claim that such is the case. The subcombination has separate utility such as by itself for its intended purpose or in a different combination.

Each of Invention III and Invention IV do not require the remaining of Invention III and Invention IV.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Any inquiry concerning this communication should be directed to Ernest F. Karlsen at telephone number 571-272-1961.
